1886.

The position of HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE as a leading weekly periodical for young readers is well established. The publishers never go pains to make the best and most attractive reading and illustrations. The serial and short stories have attracted the readers, while they are usually from the pen of a person whose name is unknown. The articles on natural history and science, the events of our life, are by writers whose names give no assurance of accuracy and value. Illustrations on athletic sports, games, and pastimes are of information on these subjects. There is nothing cheap about it but its price is an epitome of everything that is attractive.

It is wonderful in its wealth of pictures, illustrations, and interest.—Christian Advocate, N. Y.

Mr. Bergh has his eyes on no less a place than Paris, where cruelty to horses is said to be distressingly common. A cruel thing that seems to be happening all over Paris is the cracking of the whip just over the horse's head, so as to cause it to make a detonation like a pistol shot. In a satirical writing of 1619, and then it's not given as new, occurs the saying: "Paris is the paradise of women, the purgatory of men and the hell of horses."

The United States consumes tin in vast quantities, one great use for its plates being the manufacture of preserving cans. It is said that upward of $12,000,000 per annum are expended in tin cans alone in the various tin plate factories, while the sum paid for similar work in Great Britain does not amount to much more than $5,000,000. American tin work is very much lighter, and more graceful than that of England, and in England the art of pressing tin has not yet been acquired.

The following anecdote is told about the composer of the "Queen of Sheba": At a fashionable dinner party Goldmark is introduced to a pretty young lady from the country. It appears to him that she does not seem sufficiently impressed with the honor she has just received, and so he adds a gentle reminder: "Car! Goldmark, the composer of the 'Queen of Sheba'!" Whereupon the rural belle, with charming naïveté, replies: "Remunerative position, isn't it?" Goldmark withdraws in disgust.

Professor Arnold quotes in a half approving way the opinion of a German chemist that beer is a better food for nursing mothers than milk made from brewers' grains. The mineral constituents are largely leached out of barley in malting, and consequently the material for bone growth is lacking. But milk from brewers' grains is for this very reason the best for adults. What is needed for adults is heat producing food, to supply waste, not bone and muscle producing food to assist growth.

Senator Evans' library in his house in New York is full of costly books, engravings, pictures, and works of art. He had a visit there some time ago from one of his law-clients, who had always supposed the Senator to be not any too luxuriously supplied with this world's goods. He looked the room over with a critical eye and remarked that he did not see how the Senator could afford so many fine and costly things. The Senator mentioned the remark to a lawyer-friend a day or two afterward, with the dry comment: "He will know when he has seen mine."

An urn of clay lately found while a ditch was being dug on the east side of the Isle of Gothland has been sent to the Stockholm Museum. It contains 2,696 unbroken and 191 broken silver coins, part with old German and part with Anglo-Saxon stamps. There are besides silver bracelets, some with figurings appended to them, and also some rods of the finest silver, such as in early times were cut and used instead of money. The total weight of the treasure is about nine pounds. The chief interest for antiquaries lies in the fact that old German and Anglo-Saxon coins have been found together.

A writer in the English Illustrated Magazine says that there is no such thing as debate in the House of Lords in the sense that it exists in the Commons. The number of peers who are successful in making themselves heard might be counted on the fingers of both hands, but these, happily, are the members whose opinions are looked for. When Lord Salisbury, Lord Granville and perhaps a couple of peers not sitting on the front benches have spoken members just leave the house, and if any outsider wants to speak he finds himself without an audience, and so desists.

The Snake Had Taken a Jack-Pot.

John Shanahan, a workman employed at the Carson street main, is responsible for the following story. Said Mr. Shanahan: "I was digging down in the main near Temperanceville when I pulled out what I took to be a clump of roots. I shoveled the stuff up by the side of the coal fire we have to thaw out the surface, and in a little while I saw the roots a-wiggling around like fish-worms. I got up out of the trench and examined the roots and found that they were not roots, but snakes. Yes, sir, there were five of them—four little ones and one big fiver fellow at least two feet long when he got stretched out. Along about the middle of the snake was a big bunch—a piece that kind of bulged out. That struck me as rather queer, and I cut him in two with my shovel. Well, sir, what do you suppose I found? Well, there were three white poker checks and two blue ones. That's a fact, sir. I know what a poker check is, and the reptile had five of 'em in him, and I can show 'em to you yet."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

It is said that the paralysis of the actor T. W. Kean was caused by excessive smoking. He is not the first member of the profession who has succumbed to the effects of the weed. Thomas Placide, the famous comedian, died of a cancer in his lip, which was caused by pipe-smoking, and W. A. Zimmerman, who was treasurer of Niblo's Garden during the run of the famous "Black Crook," died from paralysis and softening of the brain, speedily induced by smoking cigars. De Vore, the operative manager, who is an inveterate smoker, has had two or three warnings, in the form of severe illness, that he must abandon the weed.
